

The web-site project must meet the following functional and developmental specifications.

These are the minimum specifications for the project. You are encouraged to go above and beyond these requirements to demonstrate your mastery of the course learning outcomes.

- 1 - The website must consist of at least three (3) pages with a common navigation and theme that appeals to the target audience.
- 2 - The site must have significant and relevant content that supports the purpose of the site as outlined in your website plan.
- 3 - The design must support accessibility, usability, visual appeal, and design principles.
- 4 - Structure the pages with valid, standards-based HTML markup.
- 5 - Style the site with valid CSS that does not contain unused and unnecessary (duplicate) declarations and rules.
- 6 - Style the site so that it is responsive to mobile (portrait and landscape) and larger screen views without violating PARC design principles.
- 7 - All images must be optimized.
- 8 - Use a lazy loading technique to support progressive design.
- 9 - Use an HTML form that meets the standards presented in the course.
- 10 - The site must have dynamic elements powered by Javascript including the following:
 - ✓ Have more than one function,
 - ✓ Include DOM interaction including selecting an element, modifying it, and listening for and reacting to events,
 - ✓ Use conditional branching,
 - ✓ Use objects, arrays, and array methods,
 - ✓ Exclusively use template literals when building strings for output
 - ✓ Use localStorage.
- 11 - Ensure there are no spelling or grammatical errors.

112           it to impede a love for the 113           outdoors. The expos also include organizations that help those

February 2018

"Counting coup was the winning of prestige against an enemy by the Plains Indians of North America. Warriors won prestige by acts of bravery in the face of the enemy, which could be recorded in various ways and retold as stories. Any blow struck against the enemy counted as a coup, but the most prestigious acts included touching an enemy warrior with the hand, bow, or coup stick and escaping unharmed. Risk of injury or death was required to count coup.

Escaping unharmed while counting coup was considered a higher honor than being wounded in the attempt. A warrior who won coup was permitted to wear an eagle feather in his hair. If he had been wounded in the attempt, however, he was required to paint the feather red to indicate this."

I will be wearing a RED eagle feather!

Thursday night, Feb. 1st, 2018, I was laying in room 3104 of the Arrowhead Hospital surgical ward having the contents of my upper GI sucked out through my nose, waiting to be rushed into surgery to have my intestines unblocked and a colostomy bag installed.

The prior Thursday, Jan. 25th, 2018, I was laying in Eddie Willey's guest room, listening to the chatter of his three beautiful daughters, waiting for the 4:30AM alarm to sound and the archery deer hunt to start.

Eddie got me on deer, period!

Friday morning, five minutes after Eddie drove off with my van, a 160-inch 4x4 mule deer came within 32 yards with his five girlfriends. He was a handsome buck. Unfortunately, Dads and my "buck fever" got the better of us. I made a move to release my bolt at 52 yards but he turned and bounded off.

Friday night, at dusk, I had an easy 100 yard shot on a nice 4x4 mule deer. I wanted to release that bolt with every fiber of my being but I just couldn't make out his antlers with my 2x scope. We stared at that buck for five minutes. Eddie knew it was a buck but he was 100yds from me with no way to communicate to us. He was a fat boy!

Saturday morning, a 115+ inch Coues buck came within 200 yds us. He was making his way to us when he caught a doe's scent and chased her over the hill.

Saturday night, I took my shot! Two does followed by a small 3x3 crossed inline from my right to left. I lined up on the first doe. Dad called off 62yds as the second doe crossed through my crosshairs. The buck took one step away, turned back toward the two does and moved into my crosshairs. As his shoulder hit my 60yd pin, I pressed my electronic release, and she rang out! The buck hit the ground and took off like a scalded cat on tile. I thought I missed and reloaded but he was gone! We found no blood on the ground but dad found the bolt with five inches missing off the front and broken in front of the fletchings. Eddie found a smear of blood on the bolt. It appears the buck was at 67 yards and my bolt hit it behind the leg and ricocheted down off its ribs. That buck received a painful education, but he'll be fine.

We left Sunday morning. Eddie went back out that night and watched 200+ come into the field. Like wildebeests on the plains of Africa!

I hunted deer 9 days this season, my buck never fell.

When Dad and I started this adventure fourteen months ago we knew it was going to be hard, our Everest. Not only was the preparation going to be hard and costly, the hunt, extremely taxing and the likelihood of injury and/or death would be high. Why would someone with a terminal disease risk everything for the mere, and unlikely, chance to harvest a big game animal?

The answer is simple

I am willing to give up everything to witness God's raw beauty for just one moment. I've lived in a gilded cage for 40 years, a cage created by fear. The goal was always to extend my life, a year, a month, a day. The goal was time, I was alive but not living. I gave myself eighteen months before returning to the "gilded cage" permanently. I made fourteen.

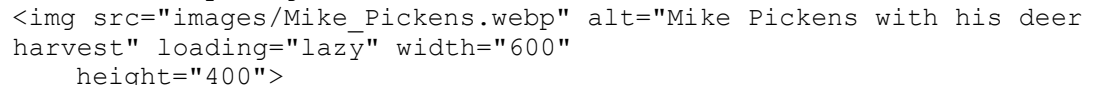

I am now being asked to stop.

I was released from the hospital yesterday at 5PM. No surgery and I'm still using the exit hole God created.

(Updated 2021) Despite a week in the ICU, I made the hunt! Four days in the field with nary a sign of javelina but frostbite scars that will remind me of this hunt for years to come. I would finally take a 65lbs sow and a forked-horn mule deer buck with Eddie and Nate during the 2019 fall deer season (After 26 years of trying, I broke down and bought a Governor's Tag.). Covid-19 destroyed my 2020 javelina season. If all goes well, I'll be back hunting javelina this February 19th, 2021.

"The difference between 'us' and 'them' is nothing more than our willingness to fight. You have but one life, fight for it!"

Two years hence, I DID NOT STOP! I'm proud of this...

322         I have been hunting most of my life. I started around 12 and I had a great teacher and it was my 323         Dad. I learned a lot from him and I remember when my whole family made it a family event. My 324         kids would go with us and love it and I have great memories.
325
326         And then I had a curve ball happen in my life. I lost my right leg about 4 years ago and thought 327         my hunting adventures were done!
328
329         But then I realized that God gave me the strength and the will.
And even though I have to ask 330         people for help, and I had to swallow my pride and to ask for help, I found out who were my real 331         friends. And I could have stopped doing something that I love to do!
332
333         But I can tell you that if you have some type of disability it doesn't mean you have to quit 334         doing stuff that you love to do. And I still love to get out and go fishing and hunting when I
335         get the chance and get lucky to get drawn!
336
337         You can sit at home and moan and complain and feel sorry for and overcome your obstacle!
